Trying to Harmonize.

The Two Republican Factions in Virginia.

IT IS MAHONE OR ANTI-MAHONE.

A Compromise May Be Effected By the Republican National Committee—Other Interesting Items Telegraphed From the National Capital.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The Mahone and Anti-Mahone adherents who came here from Virginia have been hard at work with Chairman Quay. Messrs. Clarkson and Dudley of the National committee, trying to turn the decision of the committee in their favor. The National committee met in conference at the Arlington at 9 o'clock last night, but at midnight had not reached a decision. Two calls for a state convention were submitted to them, one prepared by Col. Brady, representing the Anti-Mahonists, and another submitted by Gen. Mahone himself.

The conferees kept themselves locked up and refused admission to all reporters, so that nothing whatever could be learned about the outcome of their deliberations. Col. Brady late last night said he thought a compromise would be effected, which would be acceptable to most Republicans in the state and bring about harmonious party action next fall.

Valuable Paper to Baby McKee.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Maj. O. L. Pruden, the president's executive clerk, has presented to Mrs. McKee a beautiful certificate of the baptism of Mary Dodge, the infant daughter of Mr and Mrs. McKee, which took place in the White House June 1. The work was done with a pen, the lettering being in red, black and gold. On the side of the sheet is a bunch of roses done in water colors, and in the lower corner a pen and ink sketch of the executive mansion. The certificate bears the signatures of John Witherspoon Scott, the officiating clergyman, and of the following witnesses: President Harrison, Secretaries Blaine, Windom, Noble and Tracy, Postmaster General Wanamaker, Attorney General Miller and Private Secretary Halford. It will be taken to Mrs. McKee by Mrs. Harrison on her return to Deer Park Saturday.

Rates on Government Telegrams.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—The question of rates for government telegrams has not been decided. Yesterday Mr. Somerville, press agent of the Western Union, had a long interview with Postmaster General Wanamaker, in which he protested against the proposed rate of a cent for ten words. It is stated that the Western Union will decline to accept this rate, but, at the same time, it is said that the postmaster general will not insist upon it unless he is convinced that it would be fair to both parties.

The British Minister Leaves Washington.

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Sir Julian Pauncefote, the British minister was at the state department yesterday bidding good-by to Acting Secretary Wharton and to Walker Blaine preparatory to leaving the city for New York, whence he sails on Saturday for England. While in his own country, Sir Julian will arrange his affairs and in the fall will return to America with his family. He speaks highly of the United States and of the manner in which he has been entertained while here.

An Appointment.

WASHINGTON, July 19. The secretary of the treasury has appointed William M. Henry, of Pennsylvania, a chief of division in the second comptroller's office, to succeed William J. Neal, resigned. Mr. Henry was endorsed by Senator Quay.

It is said that ex-Representative Nichols, of North Carolina, will be appointed chief of the mail division of the treasury department, vice Maj. Kretz, resigned

Equal to Acquittal.

WHITE CAPS.

A Masked Mob Demolishes a Rascal—A Wife-Whipper Whipped.

HARTFORD CITY, Ind., July 19.—A mob of one hundred men, with black masks over their faces, attacked the house of Nancy Vincent, a notorious resort at Montpelier, this county, last night.

One male inmate was whipped with switches. The other inmates escaped. The Vincent woman was caught and tarred, and the house and furniture demolished. The occupants have fled.

Drunken Brute Regulated.

SIBLEY, Ill., July 19.—Fifteen men visited John S. Schmidt, a farmer living two miles from Sibley, late Tuesday night, and administered to him a terrible whipping with switches, for drunkenness and wife-beating. No one tried in the least to conceal his identity. The act was sanctioned by public sentiment, as Schmidt was an old offender.

Died of His Injuries.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 19.—Denis Ryan, who was shot yesterday by crazy Saladin Cook, died to-day. Cook is still at large. He is an ex-member of the legislature.

Our New German Minister.

NEWBURG, N. Y., July 19.—Hon. William Walter Phelps, the newly appointed minister to Germany, is in this city, the guest of Rev. W. K. Hall.

THE LABOR COMBINE.

It Is Not Thought Practical by a Spinner of Fall River, Massachusetts.

FALL RIVER, Mass., July 19.—Secretary Howard, of the Spinners' union, was interviewed yesterday in regard to the proposed alliance of all the great labor organizations of the country as suggested by the recently issued circular of Mr. Powderly and others. Mr. Howard said that he had little faith in the feasibility of the proposed organization, as the interests which it was proposed to benefit were of too widely divergent characters to reap the same intelligent and prompt remedial measures as might be expected from a less complicated and cumbersome body.

The textile workers of New England, Mr. Howard felt satisfied, would not look favorably upon the proposed amalgamation as they were satisfied that a more direct and profitable method of settling wage disputes and obtaining redress for grievances was through the medium of organizations representing solely the branch of industry in which they were engaged. The Knights of Labor, said Mr. Howard, are practically dead in New England, and I don't believe their former power can be restored. Their mismanagement, or worse, of their recent strike of the Worcester shoe makers destroyed all hope of their future usefulness.

This latest movement is a scheme on the part of some of the labor leaders, to recoup their fallen fortunes and recover the prestige held in former days. The movement may meet with success in the west and south, and although I express simply my own opinion, I have little hesitancy in saying that the mill operators will not look favorably on the plan. The experiences of the executive department of the Knights of Labor was a great drawback. The same objection would apply to the proposed amalgamation, and the delays incidental to the adjustment of union matters would also serve to make it unpopular.

Only of a Routine Character.

CHICAGO, July 19.—The work done yesterday by Master Workman Powderly and his associates, on the Knights of Labor executive board, was mostly of a routine character. The most important business of the day was the releasing of a coal mine owned by the organization near Connellsburg, Ind., to the present lessees for a period of ten years.

Strike Against a Reduction.

PATERSON, N. J., July 19.—About 700 operators in various silk mills here struck yesterday against a 10 per cent. reduction in wages. The manufacturers say they will close the mills until the strikers come to terms.

THE MISSING AERONAUT.

His Air Ship Seen Dragging Along the Waters of the Atlantic Ocean.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Much interest is being taken in the whereabouts of Professor E. D. Hogan, the aeronaut. Mr. Campbell, the inventor of the air ship, left his home early yesterday morning and has not been seen since. Mr. John Burrell, who is backing the enterprise, also disappeared in the same mysterious manner about an hour later.

Pilot Phelan, of the pilot boat Caprice, which came into port yesterday, reports: "Tuesday, latitude 39:10, longitude 71.40. Balloon dragging its car along the surface of the water. He was some distance from it, but gave chase, and saw it collapse and disappear at sundown, when he was three-quarters of a mile from it."

The point mentioned by Pilot Phelan is about 150 miles east of Atlantic City, N. J., in the Atlantic ocean, and it is hard to see how Hogan got there. He started from Brooklyn about noon on the 16th, Tuesday, and later was seen sailing towards the east. The wind on Tuesday afternoon was blowing from the southwest.

The friends of the enterprise now appear to agree that the air ship's ascension was somewhat premature, and proper precautions were not taken to insure against accident. Inventor Campbell says the ship was not built according to his directions. He says the neck of the balloon was at the bottom of the car and that it was possible Hogan might have died of asphyxiation, as there was more or less gas escaping all the time. The aeronaut would be in an atmosphere of gas which would soon make him unconscious and eventually kill him.

In the event of the valve rope failing to work Hogan could not possibly survive under such conditions. All experienced aeronauts agree that the neck of the balloon should be at least fifteen feet above the car so that there would be abundant opportunity for the escape of gas without imperiling the life of the man manipulating the air ship.

Saw a Balloon.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., July 19.—At about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening a big balloon passed over over this city, heading in a direction that would have brought it up over Buzzard's bay or Vineyard sound, in an hour or two. A great many people here believe that the balloon was the missing Campbell air ship, as no ascensions are known to have been made hereabouts.

Killed in a Fight.

MONTREAL, July 19.—Joseph Drouin and Joseph Bellean, two deck laborers, engaged in a fight on the wharves last night and Drouin was knocked down twice. The police arrested and locked them up. An hour later Drouin was found dead in his cell. It was found that when knocked down during the fight his head struck some pointed object which penetrated the brain.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Mr. E. M. Knowles, a well known member of the New York stock exchange, died yesterday. He belonged to the exchange for twenty years and was prominent in its councils.

A Reign of Terror.

Great Dissatisfaction Among Austrian Miners.

A FIGHT STOPPED BY SOLDIERS.

Pistols and Knives Freely Used By the Participants—A Farewell to Henry George—Death of a Balloonist—Other Foreign Dispatches.

LONDON, July 19.—A reign of terror prevails in the little mining town of Leoben, in Styria, Austria, where the whole population is on a strike. All the small tradesmen and even the civic fire brigade have common cause with the striking miners, and all commerce and industry are suspended. The strikers' attitude is threatening and the destruction of much property is certain to be the outcome unless the small force of military at that point is very largely reinforced and that promptly.

The miners of Dartmund, too, are discussing a renewal of their strike, and their discussions are not restricted to wordy arguments. Their meeting last night degenerated into a fight, in which pistols and knives were freely used, one of the men being shot dead, another stabbed to the heart and many seriously wounded. The fight was stopped only by a charge of cavalry, who rode down the men and arrested a number of the most violent.

The Two Socialists' Congresses.

PARIS, July 19.—The Possibilists met again yesterday, and continued the discussion upon the condition of the working classes in different countries of the civilized globe.

The Marxists devoted the greater part of the day's session to the reading of reports from the various nations represented, upon the progress made by the Socialist propaganda within the year. The two factions still meet in separate halls, and the prospect is that they will continue so to do, though it being apparently some insurmountable obstacle to the much talked of union between them. The failure to effect a fusion causes much bitterness within the ranks of both the Marxists and the Possibilists.

Farewell to Henry George.

LONDON, July 19.—The farewell reception to Henry George, the American reformer, who sails for home Saturday, took place yesterday and was very largely attended, many notables being present. The affair was the society of British artists, and a large number of the members came to pay their respects to the popular leader of the land reformers.

Labor Resolutions.

PARIS, July 19. The international labor congress, in session here, yesterday passed a series of resolutions very sweeping in their scope. Among other things the resolutions demand a universal maximum of eight hours for a day's labor, one holiday every week and the unconditional suppression of all labor by children under 14 years of age.

They May Carry It Too Far.

PARIS, July 19.—M. Emilie Ollivier, the French statesman, has published a letter in which he says that the indictment of Gen. Boulanger is a base attempt to dishonor a brave and devoted soldier who has served his country well. He says the French people will never allow the general to rest under the stigma.

An Aeronaut's Death.

LONDON, July 19.—An engineer named Ravenne, died yesterday from injuries sustained in an accident while making an ascent the other day, in a balloon.

A STRANGE SEQUEL.

A Cleveland Man Marries the Woman Divorced From Him Years Ago.

CLEVELAND, O., July 19.—Ten years ago Charles J. Turner, superintendent of the Cleveland forge and iron works, was divorced from his wife whom he married twenty years before in Danbury, Conn. His wife secured the decree, and returned to the home of her father, Mr. Adam D. Hamilton, in Danbury. Mr. Turner married the woman who had won his affections from his wife.

Two weeks ago last Saturday he was remarried to his first wife, with whom he lived happily until the trouble that resulted in their separation. For ten years Mrs. Turner heard nothing from her divorced husband. A month or so ago she received a newspaper containing a marked death notice. This was followed by a letter from Mr. Turner. The letter was answered, and the marriage the other night was the sequel. Mr. and Mrs. Turner have returned to Cleveland.

Official Trial of a Gunboat.

BALTIMORE, July 19.—The official trial of the gunboat Petrel was made yesterday. She left port at 11 a. m., and returned at 7:15 p. m. The indicator cards marking the horsepower developed by the Petrel will have to be sent to New York for examination and averaging, and the official report will not be made until they have been returned. The trial of speed began at 12:50 p. m. and lasted four hours. The average speed attained was 11.7 knots an hour.

Death of the Richest Man in Kentucky.

LOUISVILLE, July 19.—George W. Norton, the retired millionaire banker and capitalists, of this city, died yesterday. He was the richest man in Kentucky, possessing large real estate interests in Chicago, Duluth, Cincinnati, Louisville and elsewhere. He was 74 years of age.

A CASE OF SPITEWORK.

Detective Norris in New York Looking for Charley Mitchell and Mike Donovan.

NEW YORK, July 19.—Detective Norris appeared at the Tombs court yesterday morning with a requisition from Governor Lowry, of Mississippi, calling for the arrest of Charlie Mitchell and Mike Donavan, who looked after Kilrain in the battle with Sullivan. Norris had no requisitions for either Sullivan, Kilrain or Muldoon, and it looks as if he is merely acting out of revenge.

Kilrain and party while on their way to the battle ground were almost paralyzed with fear when they discovered the presence of Detective Norris on the train. Norris assured them, however, that he had no intention of arresting Kilrain, but was on his way to New Orleans to arrest a burglar. The Kilrain party doubted him nevertheless, and it was not until he produced the warrant that he was believed. The joy of the Kilrain party was great when Norris thus assured them. Mitchell, it is said, then promised Norris to give him $250 if he would take the party safely through Mississippi to New Orleans.

The party arrived at the latter place in safety, but Mitchell did not make good his promise. Norris then called upon the governor for a requisition for Mitchell, which was readily granted, and the governor included Donovan. Norris arrived here yesterday morning. Detectives have been detailed to hunt up the men. Justice O'Reilly, before whom the application for warrants was made, said they were not necessary.

Detective Norris, of Mississippi, finding that no arrests, on account of the Sullivan-Kilrain fights, could be made here without a requisition, notified Governor Lowry to that effect, and has received instructions to return and await the action of the grand jury, after which, whatever requisitions are needed, will be issued.

Managers of the Fight in Court.

NEW ORLEANS, July 19.—At Purvis, Miss., yesterday, Referee Fitzpatrick, Bud Renau, C. B. Rich and others connected with the Sullivan-Kilrain fight were arraigned, pleaded guilty and were admitted to bail to appear at the next term of court. The next regular term is in December, but a special term may be held in August.

MYSTERIOUS SHOOTING.

Three Longshoremen Wounded by an Unknown Assassin.

NEW YORK, July 19.—A mysterious case of shooting, in which three longshoremen were made the victims of somebody's malice, has just come to notice. Frank Meyers, of 6 Renwick street, and Edward Fanning, of 216 Elizabeth street, both longshoremen walked into Chambers street hospital Wednesday with pistol shot wounds in the body. The men said that while at work on the Ocean Steamship company's wharf, at pier 35, North river, they were shot by some person or persons. The men after having their wounds dressed went away. At noon Wednesday James Egan, of 200 Spring street, came into the hospital with three pistol shots in his body. He, too, said while working on Pier 35, some mysterious person or persons shot him. After the bullets were extracted he left.

The shooting has thrown everybody in the pier into a state of terror, and every one imagines he will be shot. The police are engaged in trying to find out who is doing the shooting, but as yet no arrests have been made. A theory given out as the cause of the shooting is that several longshoremen were discharged some time ago and their places were filled. The three men who were shot were among the new comers, and it is believed by a great many that the old men are trying to get even by shooting them.

GYPSY BLYTHE'S ESTATE.

Little Florence Ahead in the Scramble for the Wealth.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 19.—The Blythe will case, now on trial before Judge Coffey, of the superior court, is regarded by the general public as a helter-skelter scramble for big stakes, in which little Florence Blythe appears in the lead.

Mrs. Julia Ashcroft, the mother of Florence Blythe, testified that she was 36. In 1873 she was living in London, England, where she first met Thomas H. Blythe. They became lovers, and, according to the story of Mrs. Ashcraft, Blythe promised to marry her. Before doing so, however, he projected a trip to America, agreeing to return to London later on. Shortly after her lover left she discovered that she was about to become a mother. Blythe did not return, and his little daughter was born. Three years later the mother was married. Mrs. Ashcraft told a portion of the history of her relations with Thomas H. Blythe in order to establish the intimate relationship of herself and the dead millionaire in his earlier life.

Horrible Manner of Suicide.

BREWTON, Ala., July 19.—Wednesday an unknown stranger walked into the saw mill of Harold Brothers & Scott and deliberately cast himself upon the large circular saw. He was completely disemboweled, and died instantly. From papers found on his person it was ascertained that his home is in Iowa, and his name is Gaston. He was of fine personal appearance and was well dressed. His pocketbook contained $200. No cause can be assigned for the sad act unless it was disappointment in love, as a letter found in his pocket indicated the breaking of an engagement between him and a Miss Smith, of Des Moines, Iowa.

Burke's Extradition Papers.

OTTAWA, Ont., July 19.—The papers in the Burke extradition case have been received at the department of justice, from Winnepeg, a lapse of time being provided for by law, the order for extradition cannot issue until the 26th inst., and in the meantime the minister of justice will consider the merits of the case.

Counterfeit Money.

Twenty-One Thousand Dollars Captured at Dayton, O.

A DESPERATE PISTOL DUEL.

United States Secret Service Detective Denello Wounded—One of the Counterfeiters Captured and the Other One Escapes—Officers in Hot Pursuit of the Fugitive.

DAYTON, O., July 19.—United States secret service men captured $21,000 in counterfeit money here yesterday, and had a pistol duel with James Guyon, a counterfeiter, resulting in Guyon's escape and Detective Denello receiving a wound in the head. Nelson Driggs keeps the United States hotel, a roadhouse near the soldiers home. About fifteen years ago Driggs and Guyon were members of a gang of counterfeiters in Illinois. Driggs was arrested and served eleven years at Joliet, Guyon escaped, carrying with him counterfeit plates and $40,000 in bogus greenbacks. This money never made its appearance till last February.

Chief Bell of the secret service came here in March and made Driggs' acquaintance, pretending to be an attorney named McWilliams, of Hartford, Conn. A short time ago Bell broached the subject of counterfeit money to Driggs who offered to get $40,000 counterfeit for him. Bell then summoned Detective Denello to assist him. Driggs went to Cincinnati to get the stuff, but returned with only $10,000, saying Guyon would come that night with the balance. Guyon came and Driggs delivered $21,000 of the bogus money to Bell, receiving in return what purported to be $7,000 in good money, but which was really only $600. Driggs was then placed under arrest and guarded in his room.

Yesterday morning an attempt was made to capture Guyon who was supposed to be concealed on Driggs' premises. Bell, who had been reinforced by five more secret service officers, posted his men, three of them at the edge of a wooded lot adjoining the house, with instructions to close in at a given signal. Guyon, it proved, was hid in some underbrush, and when the officers closed in he passed unobserved between them. But he had not gone far when they saw him and opened fire on him. Guyon dodged behind a tree and returned the fire, putting a bullet through Denello's right ear and glancing over his scalp. Guyon then took to his heels and was soon lost to sight. The officers are scouring the country in search of him. One of the officers claims to have wounded Guyon during the pistol battle.

CONSTITUTIONAL CONVENTIONS.

Progress Made by the Lawmakers in the New States.

BISMARCK, N. Dak., July 18.—The judiciary committee has agreed to divide the state into six judicial districts and will favor establishing an appellate court. The question of taxation is still unsettled. A proposition was made to abolish the blacklist and articles were introduced prohibiting trusts and establishing boards of arbitration. The joint committee for the division of property between North and South Dakota were again in session, but thus far are unable to come to any conclusion.

At Helena, Montana.

HELENA, Mont., July 19.—In the constitutional convention the education committee reported in favor of establishing a general system of free schools, to be managed by a board of public officials, to be supported by general taxation and proceeds of land, and to be open at least three months a year in every district. The preamble to the constitution was further discussed, and a motion to abolish the jury system as a relic of barbarism was also debated.

At Olympia, W. T.

OLYMPIA, W. T., July 19.—The entire day was given up to a discussion on the judicial question. The convention agreed to have five supreme judges and twelve superior judges on the California plan. The committee on corporations is going to report in favor of a provision compelling railroad companies to furnish terminal transfer facilities to other railway and navigation companies.

At Sioux Falls, Dakota.

SIOUX FALLS, Dak., July 19.—Several reports of standing committees were presented to the constitutional convention, and they were made special orders for to-morrow. The report of the committee on the rights of married women was adopted, and when passed upon by the committee on arrangements and phraseology, will be ready for engrossing.

Result of the Big Fire.

LOWELL, Mass., July 19.—The ruins of Wednesday night's fire give forth an awful stench from the carcasses of 117 horses, which are gathered in one big heap. On Howe street the following families are left homeless: Adolphus David, Arthur Daniel, Philip Ducharme, Frank Parker, Arthur Plant, James Cox, James Buckley, B. Glandean and several French families. During the fire a young lady had both legs broken in the crowd, a firemen was hurt by being thrown from a ladder, and Clarence Coburn, of Lamson hose, was run over but not seriously injured.

Shot Himself in a Grave Yard.

BROOKLYN, July 19.—James Coppland, aged 33, of Amityville, shot himself in the head last night in his burial plot in Greenwood cemetery. He will probably die. Business reverses, family bereavement, and failing mind led to the deed.

JOHNSTOWN SUFFERERS.

The State Commission Paying Over the Relief Fund.

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., July 19.—Judge Cummin and William R. Thompson, of the state relief commission, arrived from Cresson Springs at 10 o'clock yesterday morning. These gentlemen immediately opened their office for the payment of the $500,000 of the governor's fund and $400,000 of the Pittsburg relief committee's fund. About one hundred applicants, mostly poorer classes, were in waiting.

During the day the relief commission issued 165 checks aggregating $16,335. Treasurer Thompson cashed 149 of the checks, amounting to $14,685. A large number of new claims are under consideration, and it is not believed that the $500,000 of the governor's fund will reach the sufferers at the rate orders were issued yesterday. Another distribution will follow the present, and all will be considered in the order of their coming.

As the warrants were issued and the amounts handed out, after being sworn to by the applicants, there was one grand howl of indignation and disappointment at the small amounts awarded. To illustrate: The well known Chal. Dick, of Johnstown, lost $5,000 by the flood. Dick filed a claim for $3,030. His warrant was filled out for $80. Dick was angry, refusing to accept the amount awarded.

W. Horace Rose and John P. Linton have joined hands with Dick, and refuse to take the oath required. It is thought that the better class of people will refuse to accept such amounts as are now being offered, and that there will not be serious trouble over the division of the money. The highest amount paid to any one person was $200, the lowest $50.

A Woman and Two Children Start on a Visit, but Do Not Get There.

YOUNGSTOWN, O., July 19.—The bodies of Mrs. William Gilchrist and two daughters, aged 2 and 5 years, were found yesterday in a small stream, six miles north of this city. Mr. Gilchrist, a stone contractor in this city, kissed his family good-by last Tuesday morning, his wife saying they would go on a short visit to relatives in Sharon, Pa. Mrs. Gilchrist took with her $550, saying she would deposit it in bank before she left, but the deposit was not made.

She was seen with the children at 8 o'clock Wednesday night near where the bodies were found, walking about in an aimless manner, avoiding any persons who might approach. It is supposed the unfortunate woman lost the money and became crazed.

A Runaway Accident.

CONCORD, N. H., July 19.—A bad runaway accident occurred near St. Paul's school yesterday afternoon. Four ladies were out riding. Their horse became unmanageable and ran away, throwing all four of the ladies from the carriage. Mrs. A. Willis' shoulder was broken and she was otherwise injured; Miss Sarah Noyes received injuries which will probably prove fatal. The other two ladies escaped with slight injuries.

Review of the Money, Stock and Cattle Quotations for July 18.

NEW YORK.—Money at 2 to 3 per cent. Currency sixes, 118 bid; four coupons, 128½ bid; four-and-a-halfs, 109⅞ bid.

The stock market was extremely dull this morning. At the opening, prices were somewhat irregular and most stocks were lower. Among the railroad stocks Atchison was the most active, and together with Missouri Pacific and sugar and lead trusts, absorbed most of the speculative interest. Weakness prevailed throughout the morning and prices steadily sagged to noon.

In the railway list New England dropped 1 per cent. to 49. Atchison dropped from 38¼ to 37¼. These two led the decline in the regular list. The changes in the list ranged from ¼ to ¾ per cent.

Lafine.

All is well here, and there has been no excitement, no disturbances, no weddings, no camp meetings, in fact nothing strange has turned up since my last letter.

Sunday's big rain wet things up deep, but we had no hail here, as they did a short distance west of us. We escaped well.

Parker took possession of the postoffice Monday, and Kane retired in good humor and good temper.

Wheat is nearly all cut, and hay making is in order. Meadows are generally good, but some of them are white with weeds, which I think could be killed by mowing before the seed ripens. Most of them would die out.

Corn is growing very fast, though some fields are weedy. We have had so much rain that it has been impossible to cultivate it properly in many places.

Barley is being cut and it is generally good.

Leonard Metz, of near Scott Town, is prostrated from partial paralysis. He is 95 years old and his condition is so bad that it is hardly possible for him to recover, though he has had a healthy constitution and may rally and get about again. I saw him yesterday.

Frank Miller's wife died suddenly lately. She was found dead, report says, a little ways from the house, and it is said she died of heart disease. They live seven miles west of Ladine.

It is very healthy here; scarcely anybody sick.

Some of our people are attending commencement exercises at Ada. A Miss Gray, of Scott Town, accompanies them.

Not much political noise here, but I understand that one of our Republicans says that Forster is scarcely a first-class hummer. This man has heretofore been strong for Foraker, but he is opposed to the third term, and Foraker may lose his vote, though I think not. A Republican should have more respect for the members of the Republican state convention than to speak thus of their doings. I have never known such general rejoicing over the nomination of a man as there has been over the nomination of Forster, and even other states join in rejoicing. He is the most popular man of his age in the United States, Ohio, in my opinion, has never had a better governor, nor the Republican party a better candidate.

Some talk of Mills selling out. If he should and leave Ladine, we lose another pioneer.

Shoaltz has moved to Morral. One less grocery here and a vacant room in a good locality.

Dr. Sawyer's new house is nearly finished, and Leonard's is ready for the plasterers.

My fine ground cellar is completed and next comes graneries, a barn, sheds, etc., and then we rest for this season.

Hog cholera, which has been in sight for a month, has invaded my premises. One farmer has been relieved of nearly $300 worth of hogs, but I have not that amount in this kind of stock. Have no experience in treating the disease.

Caution to Mothers.

Every mother is cautioned against giving her child laudanum or paregoric; it creates an unnatural craving for stimulants which kills the mind or the child. Acker's Baby Soother is specially prepared to benefit children and cure their pains. It is harmless and contains no Opium or Morphine. Sold by H. C. Heberman & Co.

12th Annual Bee Line Excursion.

At the urgent request of quite a number regular patrons, the Bee Line and Big Four will arrange for one of their popular, personally conducted Excursions to Kansas, Colorado, Salt Lake, Rocky Mountains and Pacific Coast, under the management of the experienced excursion agent, Mr. D. Jay Colliver. In order to accommodate all and give ample time to prepare for a visit to the far west, Tuesday, July 23rd, has been selected as the date leaving Cleveland, Cincinnati, Columbus, Dayton, Springfield and Indianapolis. Bee Line agents at each point named, will be provided with full instructions and can give full information regarding rates, routes, etc. Address them or D. Jay Colliver, Bee Line Pass. Ag't, 173 Superior street, Cleveland, O.

NOTE.—Ask any of our former patrons how the Bee Line takes care of their excursionists.

C. and A. Excursion Rates.

On August 6th and 20th, September 10th and 24th and October 8th, 1889, the Chicago and Atlantic railroad will sell round trip tickets at one limited first class fare for the round trip, to all points in Arkansas, southern Missouri, beyond and including Butler, Clinton and Springfield, except that tickets shall not be sold to Missouri River points in any case, to Texas, Indian Territory, New Mexico, Colorado, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Idaho, Arizona and Dakota; to Nebraska and Kansas, except Missouri River points, to all points in Northwestern Iowa, west of Iowa Falls, Webster City, Wall Lake, Sioux City, Mason City and Sumner; to all points in Minnesota, west of Sleepy Eye, Winnebago City, Olivia, Lake Crystal, Belgrade, Morton, Little Falls and Wilmar. Tickets to be limited thirty days from day of sale.

A Remarkable Dream.

Belief in dreams has received new adherents in Lincoln county, Me., owing to some strange circumstances attending the finding of the body of Elbridge Call. The account is given by The Bath Times as follows: For three or four days three or four hundred people had been diligently scouring the woods and examining the ponds in the vicinity, when a brother-in-law of the missing man in whose care Call's motherless child had been left, dreamed that he had found the body of Call drowned under a bridge. After telling his wife and others of his dream he started to follow down a creek not far from his farm, over which his dream had located a bridge. Upon arriving in Dresden he sought his intimate friend and brother-in-law, Mr. Bowman Myers, and they both made their way to the little stream from a directly contrary direction from Call's home, and under the old country road stone bridge, so old that old people say that it was built before their time, they found the body.

Queer Things That Are Patented.

There is a claim in the patent office for a patent on the Lord's prayer, the specifications being that the repetition of the same "rapidly and in a loud tone of voice" will cure stammering.

Among odd inventions are "chicken hopples," which walk the chicken right out of the garden when she tries to scratch; "the bee moth excluder," which automatically shuts up the beehives when the bees go to roost; "the tapeworm fishhook," which speaks for itself; the "educational balloon," a toy balloon with a map of the world on its surface; "sidehill annihilators," stilts to fit on the down hill legs of a horse when he is plowing along a hill side; and the "hen surpriser," a device that drops the newly laid egg through the bottom of the nest, with intent to beguile and wheedle the hen into at once laying another.—Louisville Courier-Journal.

Bee Stinging for Rheumatism.

According to The Medicinische Presse, of Vienna, a Dr. Tero has found a cure for rheumatism in bee stingings. Having found that every sting is followed by a swelling up to a point when the bone seems to have become hardened against further effect, he tried the stinging on a rheumatic patient. Upon saturating the patient's system with the bee poison the rheumatism disappeared—not to return for a long time. Dr. Tero has applied his remedy in 175 cases and has inflicted 39,000 stingings, and now keeps a colony of bees on his premises, to be employed in this work.

Artificial Honey.

Artificial honey, which is more common in the market than consumers know, is made of potato starch and oil of vitriol. Some rash optimists think that they are sure of getting the genuine product of bees and flowers by purchasing honey in the comb. They do not know that the exquisite white comb that pleases them is often made of paraffin wax.—Herald of Health.

A Vocal Impediment.

Mrs. Bloodgood—I understand that Mrs. Chataway, who has just moved into our block, has an impediment in her speech. What is it? Do you know?

Mrs. Parvenu—Her teeth drop out while she is talking.—Burlington Free Press.

Frozen milk, it is asserted, may be kept in a fresh state indefinitely, and many steamers sailing on distant voyages are now provided with steam refrigerators, in which milk and other foods may readily be preserved for any length of time.

He (sentimentally)—How shall I ever leave thee, love? She (practically)—Well, if you go now you may get out of the door. But I hear father coming and if you don't go now you may go out at the window.—Lawrence American.

Grapes were first cultivated about 1276, and previously to the reign of Edward VI were brought in large quantities from Flanders to England. The vine was introduced into England in 1552.

YOUNG FOLKS' COLUMN.

A HALF HOUR'S ENTERTAINMENT FOR OUR BOY AND GIRL READERS.

What the "Talking Rain" Said and Did as It Peeped from the Cloud So Dark. A Short Story Told for the Entertainment of Very Little People.

"There is plenty to do," lisped the rain
As it peeped from a cloud so dark,
"I must wake up the flowers again,
That's the song of the bluebird—hark!
To the roots of the trees I'll creep;
Stir the squirrels from out their nap;
Under dead and dried leaves I'll peep;
At the windows of brooks I'll tap!"

THE RAIN SWEPT FROM THE CLOUD WITH A RUSH.

Then it swept from the cloud with a rush;
Sharply rapped at the flowers' door.
Little brooks, with a silvery gush,
Jumped away to the sea once more.
How the drowsy old trees brightened up!
Peeped the daisies in caps and frills;
While the crocus and buttercup
Smiled a welcome from valley and hills

How it danced o'er the ground in its glee,
To the ripple of music shrill!
How it glistened on bush and tree,
When the sun burst out warm and still!
But it stopped not a moment, that rain,
Till the bluebirds, in rustling flight,
It had tangled again and again!
Then it silently swept from sight.

A Dreaded Task.

A task never grows smaller or lighter by sitting down and lamenting that it must be done, and there is an old maxim that teaches us that "a thing begun is half done." The following, told in Golden Days, illustrates that "He doubles a task who dreads it:"

A farmer friend of mine has a boy of 11 years, named Billy, who is like a good many other boys of my acquaintance. His heart is heavy, and a cloud immediately overspreads his mental horizon when he is asked to make himself useful.

"Billy," said Mr. H——, one day when I was out to the farm, "why don't you go to work on that little patch of potatoes?"

"Aw," whined Billy, "there's so many of them taters I'll never get them hoed."

"You won't if you don't begin soon."

"I hate to begin."

"How are you ever going to do the work if you don't begin?"

"Well, I'll begin pretty soon."

His father walked away and I heard Billy exclaim, in a tone indicating great mental distress:

"Plague on them old taters! It makes me sick to think about them."

"Why do you think about them then?" I said, laughingly.

"I've got to," he replied, dolefully, with a sorrowful shake of the head. "I've been thinking about them ever since I got up this morning."

"How long, now, Billy, will it really take you to hoe them?"

"Well, at least an hour."

"And you've been distressed about it ever since you got up?"

"Well, I hate to hoe taters."

"And you've been up a little more than five hours?"

"Well, I—I"——. Billy began to grin, took up his hoe and said, "By jing, I never thought of that!"

And the potatoes were hoed in just forty minutes.

Little Peter and His Pig.

It was the prettiest little pig with a curl in his tail and the darlingest of pink noses. You would never have dreamed, to look at him, that he could turn into a big, fat, bristly beast, weighing 400 pounds. But that was just what little Peter did dream. And he dreamed it the very night after he had taken the little pig home to the pig house beside the back door. He dreamed what nice pink hams he would make and what juicy steaks and roasts.

LITTLE PETER TAKING HOME HIS PIG.

But just here the dream broke off or turned into something else. And Peter heard the drollest sounds under his window and saw two big fat pigs, and one of them winked his eye.

"And so he thinks he's going to eat us, does he? ha! ha! ha! oof! oof! queer-est!" said the pig who winked.

"Well, now suppose we should just turn round and eat him! queer-est! oof! oof! ha! ha!" said the other pig.

And Peter was so frightened he cuddled down in bed and shut his eyes tight and pulled the bed clothes over his head, and never looked out till his mother came and put them back and said:

"Get up, little Peter, and feed your little piggie."—Little Men and Women.

A Short Lesson on the Use of Words.

Do not say "the above statement;" say "the foregoing statement."

Do not say "above a mile distant;" say "more than a mile distant."

Discriminate between above and beyond. Do not say "above his strength," but "beyond his strength."

Discriminate between "all over" and "over all." Instead of saying, "The rumor flew all over the country," say "over all the country."

PHYSIOLOGY AND HYGIENE.

How Fair Skinned Young Women May Prevent Freckles During the Outing Season.

With the season's crop of out door sports begins a time of much tribulation to the girl who freckles. It is quite the correct thing nowadays for a girl to acquire a lovely biscuit tint all over face and hands during the summer months, and lucky is she whose skin takes on merely the desired coat of delicate brown; but the young women who freckle, have a decidedly hard time of it. For the comfort of these unfortunate maidens are reproduced here some plans that are successfully followed in combatting the season's terror.

Washing the face in acid butt'milk, an old country cosmetic, is still in favor, but the juice pressed from cucumbers is altogether preferable, and, though of old repute, is a fashionable London preparation. The juice of milkweed also is a proprietary lotion for the face, sold by modish cosmetic artists abroad. The home formula for making it is: Bruise, and then squeeze out the juice of milkweed, and to this juice add three times the quantity of soft water. Bathe the skin with this night and morning, and wash afterward with clean water. Those vegetable lotions being gummy, protective and detersive, refine the skin, and, unlike spirituous washes, do not bring out the hair on the cheeks.

A favorite lotion consists of equal parts of fresh lemon juice, rose water and rectified spirits, and a little powdered borax. The whole is allowed to stand twenty-four hours, and is strained through muslin and bottled. Or you may touch the freckles with javelle water, taking great care it does not touch the eyes, lips, or the inside of the nose, and after a few minutes washing off with lemon or vinegar. This, however, is rather severe treatment.

Perhaps the most satisfactory of all is the following process, recently recommended: When the unhappy freckler comes home from a long day on top of a coach or on the deck of a yacht, let her bathe her face in a basin of water as hot as she can bear her hand in, using a soft, flat sponge, and it will be no harm if she first dissolves in this hot water a handful of almond meal. The face should then be dried with a soft towel, not rubbed, but gently mopped dry, and then lightly powdered with a little pulverized orris root. This will take all the soreness and inflammation out of the skin and will prevent her little nose from turning a rosy carmine, as might very probably be the case otherwise. She may safely go down to dinner this way, for the freckles will not appear that evening; it is the first look in the glass the next morning when she jumps out of bed that is so discouraging to the freckler after a day out of doors.

To prevent this woe she must carry with her wherever she goes a little box of powdered sulphur and a lemon or two. When she is about to retire for the night let her wife sift the orris root powder, put a tablespoonful of this sulphur in a saucer, squeeze the juice of half a lemon over it, and spread the thin paste she makes of this all over her face and hands; and let her not go to bed until it is thoroughly dry. When she wakes in the morning and washes off what is left of the paste she will find not a single spot underneath it; or, if she happen to be a very obstinate freckler indeed, they will be so few and light as not to cause her any great grief.

Powdered Sugar for Diphtheria.

The good effect of sugar as an application to unhealthy granulations has long been recognized. A German physician now highly recommends the treatment of diphtheria by the insufflation of very finely powdered sugar upon the tonsils, pharynx, posterior nares, the entrance to the larynx, and, after tracheotomy, through the canula. The danger of general infection is abated, the odor of decomposition lessened, and in many cases in which the larynx was involved the insufflation of sugar loosened the cough and the threatening symptoms gradually ceased. As general treatment, apomorphia and, later, an easily digested iron preparation is recommended.

A Precaution in Scarlet Fever.

To diminish the danger of infection in scarlet fever Dr. Tyrrell, of the California board of health, enjoins that patients, during the "peeling" period, should be frequently bathed and anointed with animal fat or oil, to hinder the dissemination of the branny scales.

SOCIAL ETIQUETTE.

Mourning Customs Observances Which Good Taste and Best Usage Require.

There can hardly be said to be any rigid etiquette of mourning in this country, for many people entertain conscientious scruples against putting on mourning garb, and, also, great diversity exists as to the length of time devoted to seclusion. There are some points, however, which good taste would seem to decide with sufficient emphasis. If people choose, as in my do, not to wear mourning, then they can go unchallenged to any place of amusement, for they have asserted their right to be independent; but if they put on mourning, they should respect its etiquette. Those who do adopt deep mourning, follow in general the English fashions, in regard to which Good Housekeeping makes the following explanations:

No jewelry is allowable in deepest mourning, and during this period the wearer does not accept any invitations or appear at any place of public resort. The deepest mourning is necessarily a widow's, and it is in extremely bad taste to wear such mourning on any other occasion. Thus a daughter wears much simpler mourning, and it would be ostentatious for her to adopt the dress suitable for her mother. It is in bad taste to continue wearing diamonds or any gems during the period that crape is worn. This seems self evident to any person of taste, but this rule is so continually violated in this country that it is necessary to repeat this. Well-meaning women, who do not intend to violate the canon of refined taste, sometimes wear solitaire diamonds with a widow's cap.

The time during which crape is worn varies with individual feeling, and no rules can be laid down. It is not, however, considered in good taste for a widow adopting mourning to lay aside her crape and enter society in less time than a year, while it is allowable for a daughter to appear at social gatherings in two or three months. The stationery used in mourning is finished with a black band, which varies from a quarter of an inch to a more line on the edge. The extreme band, half an inch in depth, is seldom or never used by refined persons. The quarter inch band is used only for a few months while the mourner is in crape. Cards are not necessary while in the deepest mourning.

A very slight band of black is sometimes used on the visiting card, after crape is taken off and the lady enters society for the first time since her seclusion. It has been an open question how ladies should intimate to their friends that they are willing to receive and pay visits and ready to enter society. It is customary to send out cards of thanks for kind inquiries to those who have called or sent inquiries, and when these cards are sent out it is sufficient intimation that the lady will receive calls, or the lady entering society may leave her ordinary visiting card. It is also an open question in this country whether a widow may retain her husband's name. In London a widow uses her own name only, but custom has sanctioned the use of the husband's name in this country should she prefer.

Sir Boyle's "Bulls."

Sergt. Arabin had a facility of making "bulls" which would have done credit to Sir Boyle Roche. Here is one of them: "Prisoner at the bar, if ever there was a clearer case than this of a man robbing his master, this case is that case." "It is in my power," he said to another delinquent, "to subject you to transportation for a period very considerably beyond the term of your natural life, but the court, in its mercy, will not go so far as it lawfully might go." His happiest effort was perhaps the offer to give another prisoner "a chance of redeeming a character which he had irretrievably lost."—San Francisco Argonaut.

Young Again.

Pain and sickness bring on old age with wonderful rapidity. Weary steps and faded cheeks often confess how an accumulation of the ills of life weighs heavily upon the system. Electric Bitters will make one feel young again, and on account of the reduced prices they bring it within an immense sale.

SEC. 6. Each representative district, in counties entitled to more than one representative, shall be composed of compact territory, bounded by ward or township lines, and as nearly equal in population as practicable; and each of such districts shall be numbered.

SEC. 7. The state shall be divided into not less than thirty-five nor more than forty senatorial districts, as herein provided, and each district shall choose one senator.

SEC. 8. The ratio for a senator shall be ascertained by dividing the population of the state by the number thirty-five.

SEC. 9. Each senatorial district shall be composed of compact territory, as nearly equal in population as practicable, and except as to districts in counties entitled to two or more senators, shall be bounded by county lines.

SEC. 10. Each county having a population equal to three-fourths of one senatorial ratio shall constitute a senatorial district. Each county having a population equal to one senatorial ratio, and one-half over, shall be divided into two senatorial districts. Each county having a population equal to two and one-half ratios shall be divided into three senatorial districts, and so on; but no ward or township shall be divided in the formation of a senatorial district.

ROBERT E. LAMPSON,
Speaker of the House of Representatives.
THEO. F. DAVIS,
President pro tem. of the Senate.

Adopted April 9th, 1889.

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA, OHIO, } OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY OF STATE.

I, Daniel J. Ryan, secretary of state of the State of Ohio, do hereby certify that the foregoing is a true copy of a joint resolution adopted by the General Assembly of the State of Ohio, on the 9th day of April, A. D. 1889, taken from the original rolls filed in this office.

AFAR IN THE DESERT.

In our times, France's great African colonies are subdued forever; but in other days, during the attempts of a laborious conquest, every moment held a danger. Skirmishes were incessant, real combats were frequent, and each post of the extreme vanguard had its romantic episodes, to be related later. Here is one of them.

Soft and wavering the wind blew up off the scorched desert, the air freshened suddenly, and suddenly the night fell. Like a barrier upon the horizon the ascending hills gradually took on tints of gray or lilac; to the right and to the left stretched the plain of reddish sand, traversed irregularly by ravines of less or greater darkness, according to their depth, and by strange palm groves, dusty, yellow, sunburned. Twilight is unknown in Africa: darkness falls there with a push, like a curtain, and this swiftness of change of setting is accentuated correspondingly as the dry country is reached, in the heart of the desert, in the unexplored lands. Here, past the High Plains, beyond Saida, Ain-Seffra, almost into Morocco, on the borders of the mysterious Fighig, at the farthest point whither the exploring columns have penetrated, this natural phenomenon is profoundly noticeable; the shades invade the earth in the briefest moment, and change and darken it with their clouds as ink darkens water.

A bugle sounded within the circle of tents; the horses of the picket lifted their heads, and the chasseurs, in their wide blouses and trousers of linen, went to form in line slowly for the evening roll call. The bugle call, loud and shrill, was prolonged infinitely, carried by the sonorous swells to the foot of the tranquil mountains, where the sound died out. The squadron was formed on the right. Cabarousse, captain commanding, and his two lieutenants, Peyralte and Vaudras, all drowsy, regarded the maneuver carelessly, without uttering a word, with their arms drooping, and all about, far, near, above, everywhere, there reigned a silence so great that it seemed religious, sacred, full of august mysteries.

The roll call was begun. After each name followed the same brief, monotonous answers, as each day at that hour, with the apathetic indifference of mechanical exertion. The adjutant did not even pause before passing from one name to another.

"Present! —esent! —esent!"

"Hanrion?"

No one answered. The adjutant, surprised, lifted his gaze from his roll book and repeated:

"Hanrion?"

Nothing.

"Well! are you deaf, you Hanrion?"

No answer.

A soldier was missing. His companions of the ranks spread their hands and gesticulated in token that they knew nothing, comprehended nothing. Cabarousse came forward.

"Let us see! Who was the last man to see Hanrion? Where was it? When was it? Speak up now!"

In the morning, at roll call; none had seen him since.

"Finish the roll call! Break—ranks!"

So there was a soldier missing. In the neighborhood of a city, Cabarousse would have shrugged his shoulders, saying simply: "A hair thrown to the winds!" but here in this complete solitude, twenty leagues from the last advanced post, an absent man might as well be counted dead at once. And in a squadron alone there, isolated, lost, and entirely dependent upon itself, a call without response was enough to chill the boldest. In the desert, ranks are inevitably narrowed, and individualities are allied; no one is unknown, all are comrades, and one of these comrades had disappeared. In every group, whether the sleeves were blank or braided, that disappearance was discussed passionately, with the instinctive horror of the thought—"If it were I!" For human selfishness is never lost completely; all solidarity rests on personal considerations.

The country here was not, however, openly dangerous, not avowedly hostile; the bands of nomad Arabs had been repulsed, driven back to the mountains, and only a Kabyle village had its huts a short distance away. But the Kabyles are sedentary, of lazy habits, and they regard with indifference the foreign troops defiling past them in clouds of golden dust, and strike not, unless they are attacked in their own dwellings, under their roofs of mud and stone.

And yet, nevertheless, Cabarousse, suspicious, twisting his mustaches, looked obstinately to that side where lay the Kabyle village. There, he was convinced, lay the solution of the mystery. Suddenly he strode toward the groups of soldiers.

"Here! let us see about this! no more trifling! Does any one know anything? —there must be a woman in this business —a Kabyle woman, eh? Answer—one or another, or all at once! But answer! or else"——

"A woman—or more than one! it is the same thing," let slip a soldier, shaking his head knowingly.

"Here, you! come forward, and tell what you know!"

The soldier advanced and spoke out, finally. He was a barracks gossip, a swaggerer, and he spoke after his kind. "Well, this is about it, my captain; one is not made of wood, you see, and the desert is wide, and six months is a long time. It is very hard—not to see a woman for that long." Then he went on to say that the Kabyle girls were wont to go to wash their bright colored rags at a rill at no great distance from the camp, and "The devil! one gets a twist in both eyes when one sees their brown, round ankles, as they go down to the gully. But that is all! as to their heads, they are so togged out that one sees only their eyes. But such eyes! That scamp Hanrion liked to go to watch them wash—a fancy like any other. He declared that the tallest and the shortest of them winked at him sidewise as they passed by him; and that always pleases a man, wherever he may be, my captain"——

"That is enough!" said Cabarousse, and he gave the order to saddle the horses.

Thirty men were left in charge of the tents. The others were galloping in the bright moonlight, and by the clear rays horses and riders projected gigantic shadows, scattered by the haste of march, but equal in their dimensions, the lines being maintained strictly. The thirst for battle and the joy of vengeance impelled the squadron; besides, any excitement is welcome which comes to break the monotony of long days of idleness. Then forward! Uprose and fled from the road the marauding jackals, whose shrill squeals insult from afar their natural enemy, man, once he is safely past them. Now and then a saber sounded against a stirrup, or a horse which left his place was by force of hand returned thither; but always the troop continued advancing with spectral aspect, forming an ever retreating picture.

The soldiers were content with the expedition, perceiving that the death of one among them was not to be passed over indifferently, and that all bloody memories would find prompt vengeance. Little by little, a sparse vegetation spread beneath the feet of the horses; then the way was streaked by the silhouettes of palm trees; farther yet, and the Kabyle village stood confusedly out from the earth, with its mud hovels, low, narrow windowed, whose doors were too small for human stature; and round about the inclosures for cattle, now vacant.

At a brief word of command, the squadron halted. No light shone, all was dark; no one moved, nor anything whatever. Only a few vagabond dogs, scenting the strangers, barked upon the dung heaps. The troop surrounded, at a walk, the village, still silent, still dark. Dismount! They entered the first hut, and it was vacant; vacant, too, the second; the third vacant; all were vacant—the inhabitants had fled, taking their effects and weapons. This was their guilty confession. More than that all farther search was now useless and without purpose.

But what was that? Lying across a doorway, with its face in a heap of filth, was the body of a man, with its throat cut, its face bathed in blood. It was Hanrion. Then, on the vast night, arose a clamor of rage, which presently sinks into grief a tone of unspeakable sadness, of supreme pity. Afar stretch the undulating plains; and the imperturbable chain of hills, black now, seemed insolently to bar the way to reprisals.

Stiff upon his horse, gloomy and forbidding in the clear night, Cabarousse shook his clenched hand at the invisible as one who dreams of vengeance.

"Lieutenant!" he cried, at last, "take fifty men and crush that brood of maggots until not two are left living! Oh, that I must stay at my post! that I might go with you!"

When the ranks were formed, the sub-lieutenant, Phillippe Vaudras, saluted and started with his fifty men toward the Unknown before them, while Cabarousse and his squad returned at a foot pace, in their own despite, to the camp, with heads bent, with hearts saddened, bearing, laid across two horses, the bloody body of the murdered Hanrion.

Tall, slender, a bonnie blonde, with clear blue eyes, when he left the military school, Phillippe Vaudras had chosen Africa as a field for adventure, and, in a year of camp life, he had made himself noted for his bravery, and this in a wild squadron where every man was valiant. Because of his white hands, his sweet voice, and his youth, the soldiers called him "The Little One," "Mlle. Vaudras," or also "My Lady Sub-Lieutenant;" but, when he charged across the plain, that "little one" gladdened the heart; his horse had splendid legs and was always first in the combat; and—what a powerful list had "my lady sub-lieutenant!" His soldiers were fain to follow Vaudras, since they could never get before him; and they followed him with enthusiasm, drunken with his wildness, and, above all, so that nothing of ill should befall him. He seemed precisely the chief necessary for that romantic expedition, for that tragic night, for that setting extraordinarily tragic; after him his troops would follow blindly.

At the head of the vanguard and on the flanks of the squads, the guides, the explorers, the pathfinders bent over their pommels, with their gaze fixed on the ground, directing their course by tracks almost invisible by the pale light. Across a width of forty yards there appeared in the sand deep marks, footprints of men and beasts, whose wide spaces attested the tumultuous fight, the disorder of defeat, beneath the furious lashes of the Kabyle drivers, terrified by that corpse they left behind them.

The horses of the pursuers were panting. "Halt!" commanded Vaudras. The chasseurs camped as well as they could; they lay down to sleep with an arm through the bridle, and in spite of the jerks and pulls of the animals their sleep was deep and dreamless. At last a faint white streak appeared on the horizon; dawn was breaking; and suddenly a growing light dispelled the shadows and discovered distant objects. Then on the flank of the hills appeared the tribe they were pursuing, a long, gray line of men, women and children, of sheep and oxen, climbing the heights in haste, and the air conveyed to them like a call the lowing of the oxen and the bleating of the sheep.

With one simultaneous shout the riders spurred to a gallop, but if they saw they were seen also, and the Kabyles, abandoning already the heaviest of their luggage, ran up the steeps in a revolt of confusion. They were lost to sight in the chaos of gigantic bowlders; one by one, as ants bury themselves in the earth, they were hidden to the last one in the hollows of the mountain. All that remained in sight were a few oxen, uneasy, turning toward the plain, lowing sadly, with necks stretched, muzzle thrust out and nostrils flaring.

An hour later Vaudras and his troopers found themselves all at once within a hundred yards of the enemy, having arrived thither by means of literal goat paths. The Kabyles had made front and were awaiting them. The situation explained their audacity. Between the fugitive tribe and the blue and red chasseurs, the only path open was an extremely narrow pass which joined two level spaces. This pass ran along the side of the mountain like a forbidding baloony hung over a gorge of immense depth. It was not wide enough for two horseman abreast, and that beneath the unerring fire of the Kabyles on the heights. The least slip, the first false step, would send one rolling into infinite space. Vaudras saw this conformation, and, understanding its horror, his face blanched and he shut his eyes. The troopers paused in astonishment and the smoking horses panted heavily and receded, necks thrust over croppers. Evidently the Kabyles had known of that natural redoubt; the women and children were hidden behind the rocks in the rear, and the men were on their knees or on their breasts, sheltered from balls by great blocks of granite. They held the mountain and could fire at their pleasure upon the soldiers in the open. Moreover, there was the ravine, the threatening fall.

The French soldiers thrust their heads forward to gaze at the abyss, saying by their grimaces: "If we were birds, now!"—

Suddenly, the bugler, a little scamp of 20 years old at the utmost, spurred his horse forward in bravado and sounded the charge. The signal was given, the horses started of their own accord, and along the whole extent of the menacing pass, heads flush with tails before them, the first squad dashed splendidly, under a furious fusillade. Only one man, restraining his horse with both hands—only one man rigid as if petrified in his saddle, remained behind it as rear guard.

It was Vaudras.

One, two, four, five, twenty; the troopers thundered past him, shaking their heads under that hurricane of balls, but laughing and encouraging one another with shouts. The sub-lieutenant remained immovable, with his eyes fixed on the summit, a cold sweat running off his temples.

Vaudras was smitten with vertigo.

To be attacked by vertigo is almost as bad as to go mad outright. The horror of it suffocates and paralyzes; and the man predisposed by temperament to that mysterious potency of empty space, to that magnetic attraction from abysses, loses all consciousness of himself and all will power; he pales, he trembles, he recedes, and flies from the mute summons of the invisible death awaiting him in the air.

Vaudras was afraid.

Ah! the battle! there is the powder which laughs, the lead which whistles, the steel which darts, the blood which flows, the splendid shocks, the noisy death at will! But that great mouth, silent, terrific, waiting to suck one in—not—not—not impossible! never!

Thirty men had passed, had taken the lead of Vaudras. They fancied that their officer, for the best of reasons, doubtless, watched their tragic defile, and would follow to place himself at their head again. None noted his appearance, none suspected his anguish. The "little one" afraid! Bah! "Mademoiselle" Vaudras nervous! Indeed, that is enough to terrify. What is the matter? "My lady sub-lieutenant is crying!"

Forty men had gone forward; the balls whistled harshly, scratching the granite walls with terrible rebounds. The Kabyles were firing volleys, continual discharges, sure that they were lost if the charging foe should reach them. Vaudras was exposing himself as a target uselessly.

All the fifty men had passed by him. He remained alone. He dismounted, meaning to try the pass on foot. His horse broke from him and hurled itself after the others. At a quarter the length of the trail its shoes slipped on the rock, it lost its footing and was whirled into the abyss, its four hoofs turned upward. Vaudras screamed, his eyes starting from their sockets. He threw himself upon his knees, he dragged himself upon his stomach, but brute instinct drew him backward. He could not go on.

At that moment he saw his men surrounded on all sides by the Kabyles, three times their number, rendered desperate by their danger. The women and children sallied from their rock crannies and hung themselves from the bridles; they plunged knives into the bellies of the horses, they scratched, they bit, they threw stones. In that swarming of the horde, that entanglement, that furious grasp of the raving multitude, the chasseurs, suffocated, dragged down, felt their limbs grow numb. Their bleeding bodies were drenching the earth with red, and their leader was not there to inspire them, to ordain a victory.

It was faring ill with them. Their long sabers, dulled and bent, were withdrawn with difficulty from their thrusts into the masses. Their arms were weak and broken. They were powder burned—at such close range were the Kabyles firing. They were deafened by the yells of the dogs, excited by that combat; they were deafened by the shrieks of the children, by the howls of the women, by the roars of the men; cut, bitten, bleeding, scorched on all sides, the little troop melted slowly before the multitude which assailed unceasingly. Sally, ambuscade, be the attack of what ilk it might, it meant defeat and death to the French cavalrymen.

Vaudras once more started to run forward, and with his mouth foaming he fell back once more—the last time. From afar he gazed with an infinite tenderness upon his men, dying there without him—but, ah! in dying they were fighting bravely—slaying gallantly. He drew his pistol from his belt, he held it against his temple, he pressed the trigger, and the last convulsions of the death agony precipitated his corpse into that bottomless abyss which had brought upon him the accursed vertigo.—Translated for The Argonaut from the French of Maurice Montegut by Y. H. Addis.

LONG LIFE

There is nothing in the world more generally desired than long life, yet the majority of people put off caring for their health—not because they are really careless, but because we live our lives at such a pace we have not time to give the subject sufficient thought until we receive a reminder in the shape of a severe illness.

Then, too, we are constantly bewildered by the various schools of medicine, and the physicians who represent them, and often blunder in our choice of a doctor.

If people only knew that the very best health-keeper, life-preserver, and disease-preventer that has yet been discovered, is simmered down into a concentrated and very palatable form in the shape of New Style Pleasant Taste Vinegar Bitters, they would not hesitate a moment to try it.

But they do not know. How can they know, when so many not only worthless, but positively injurious drugs are constantly flooding the market under various names guises, that the New Style Vinegar Bitters is as bad as any of them?

They do not know, of course unless they have the courage to try the New Style. It straightens out a tangled-up system in a very short while, and those who buy it once buy it always.

Why don't you try it, reader? It is sent out by a responsible house, and is exactly as represented. It costs but a dollar for a very large bottle. Try it once and you will never be so glad o' anything in your life. Your druggist may not have it, but he will order it for you. Be sure it says New Style Pleasant Taste on carton and bottle before you take it. Try it, and you will feel happier than if you had found a gold mine, for it really is a mine—of health.

Free from alcohol and opium; composed of expensive herbs and roots, with a fine, delicate flavoring.

The English Lutheran picnic attracted quite a number from this city to that place Thursday. Although the mclemency of the weather prevented the usual exercises from being held in the grove they took place in the Opera House at Prospect, and all had a very pleasant time. The Prospect band furnished music for the occasion. Boat riding and various other amusements were indulged in until evening, when all returned home well pleased with the entertainment of the day.

Richwood Gazette: Society at Magnetic Springs has been slightly agitated on account of the attentions paid to each other by a lady and gentleman stopping there. Both are married and their respective spouses are at home in another part of the state. The two seemed to have such a magnetic attraction for each other—caused, no doubt, by drinking the magnetic water—that it occasioned some comment among citizens and visitors, and a good deal of amusement all around.

Huntington Herald: Two judgments were taken in the Circuit Court, yesterday against the C. and A. Ry. Co., for damages. One was in favor of Mrs. Patrick Collins, for $7,500, on account of the death of her husband who was killed at Spencerville, Ohio, in January, 1888, while working in the capacity of fireman under his engine, on the road. The other, for the sum of $7,000, was in favor of John M. Cassidy, for the loss of a leg. Deserving as the parties are of damages, it is uncertain whether they will realize any benefit from the judgments. The road is in the hands of a Receiver, and it is doubtful if the claims can be collected. Should it revert to its original owners, it would become a claim upon them which they would be compelled to meet.

The Way to Keep Cool.

[Mt. Gilead Register.]

"Doctor, give me a suggestion as to the best way to stand this hot weather." "Well," replied the prominent physician, "I'll tell you how to do it. In the first place I get plenty of sleep. I do this by eating a light supper, without coffee and with very little fluid of any sort and but a mouthful of beefsteak. My day's work ends with the day, and after sunset I just sit around with out my coat and vest. About 9 o'clock I slip quietly into my bedroom and soak myself for ten or fifteen minutes in a bathtub full of cold water. Without drying myself I draw on my sleeping garment and to bed. My temperature has been reduced and my pulse has slowed up. This condition is preserved by the evaporation which goes on for half an hour or more, during which I go to sleep. Try it. Now, for the day time, I eat a moderate breakfast, with but little hot coffee or tea. I avoid the butter and anything else very greasy. I eat my fill of bread, toast, tomatoes, cold milk, etc., with a small piece of lean, rare steak. I do not smoke nor drink anything alcoholic. I occasionally take a glass of some aerated water, like vichy or seltzer. I wear light clothes and but few of them, and am not ashamed to carry an umbrella. The result is that I suffer as little from the heat as is possible during this sultry weather."

Died at the Infirmary.

DOXSEE'S PURE CLAM JUICE!

A Natural Medicine, an Agreeable, Not a Nauseous Dose.

"Throw physic to the dogs."
—Shakespeare or Bacon?

INVIGORATING and appetizing if taken cold before eating in the morning. It tones up the system, settles a disordered stomach. A gentle, but sure cathartic. If a matitudinal cocktail must be indulged in, it will counteract its bad effects as to stomach and brain. An absolute and sure preventitive of sea sickness. Its components are closely allied to the gastric juices of the stomach.

An Antidote to Intexicants.

If taken regularly, fresh and cold, three times a day, before each meal, it will put the stomach in such a shape that the necessity for ardent spirits will not be felt, and excessive drinks can be toned down to simple moderation. I shall keep Clam Juice constantly on hand to be served FREE, hot or cold, to my customers. Knowing positively from experience that it will do all that is claimed for it above, I will try in every way to promote its use, as it is not my wish to encourage excessive drinking, and I can discourage it by giving away freely the only known antidote I will only be too glad to do so.

Have also for sale Buckingham whisky, old Maryland rye—fully matured, seven years old, the best in the country.

IN THE INTEREST OF THE PEOPLE

The Local Coal Dealers, Failing to Induce L. B. Gurley to Join the Ring, Try to Freeze Him Out.

The people of Marion are certainly interested in whatever touches their purses, so they can not fail to take an interest in the local coal fight. Early in the season the local coal dealers tried every means to get the undersigned to enter the coal combination, a local institution for the purpose of keeping up high "ring" prices. Desiring to conduct my own affairs I steadfastly refused, and as a result am now experiencing a genuine fight by the local ring's endeavors freeze me out of the business. They have reported to the Coal Dealers' Association that I am a "scalper"—no regular dealer—and have endeavored in every way to prevent me from buying coal.

The people of Marion deserve to know this. I sell coal at a profit on which both myself and consumer can live, and for this GRAVE OFFENCE there is a combination to keep me out of business. In this fight, are the people interested in behalf of the dealer who sells at a living price or the ring that wants an extortionate price?

Call and see me and get my prices, prices which no ring can control if the people want to buy in their own interests.

New Species of Wheat.

The investigations that are being made by the agricultural department with a view to the introduction of new species of wheat to take the place of the exhausted standard varieties have so far been quite successful. Wherever unusually large yields have been reported the agents of the department have been sent to make thorough and systematic inquiry. Assistant Secretary Willets informed the correspondent that a variety had been discovered in the state of Delaware that is regarded as phenomenal. "It is called the Hindostan," said Mr. Willets, "because it is supposed that the seed from which it was originally grown came from that country. But this is uncertain. A few grains of wheat were found by some farmer of an experimental turn of mind among a lot of pearls and bales imported from India. These grains were sown and cultivated until this year it is estimated that the whole will thresh out almost sixty bushels to the acre. This is in a section of country which rarely produces over twenty bushels, consequently the yield of triple that quantity is regarded as almost phenomenal. The department has arranged to make extensive experiment with this variety next year in all parts of the country.

The Coal Trade.

The Columbus Dispatch says: "The demand for coal for the lake trade is on the increase. The business opened up a few days later than last year, owing to the fact that the great northwest was overstocked. It is estimated that the extremely mild winter left on hand in that region not less than 800,000 tons. This, however, will have but slight effect on the coal business of the Hocking Valley, as operators claim to have as good contracts for present delivery as last year. The Columbus, Hocking Valley and Toledo Railroad is now hauling from three to three hundred and fifty cars of coal a day, and this is almost exclusively for the trade. It is admitted, however, that the substitution of natural gas for coal in several sections of the State has, to a certain extent, unsettled the plans of operators."

Progress.

It is very important in this age of vast material progress that remedies be pleasing to the taste and to the eye, easily taken, acceptable to the stomach and healthy in its nature and effects. Possessing these qualities, Syrup of Figs is the one perfect laxative and most gentle diuretic known.

Notice to Contractors.

Bids will be received at the office of Howland & Ellis, Masonic block, on or before July 20th, for the furnishing of material for and the building of about 180 rods of board fence.
